Detailed description, further notes, observations

A circle of stones, one stone in height. Possible second circle approx. 2m inside the larger one. The circle is to the east of the first summit ridge visible from the road and set well below the summit ? for shelter from prevailing winds. A second, indistinct circle is visible to the northwest of the main circle.

Many of the stones of the main circle seem to be tipped outwards, possibly to form the bases on which the branches which formed the roof were placed.
